

Contents

Geriatrics and Gerontology International Volume 23 Issue 5, May 2023

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

EPIDEMIOLOGY, CLINICAL PRACTICE AND HEALTH

- Disturbed medication management in older adults with good cognitive health and mild cognitive impairment associated with semantic memory impairment: The Wakuya Project
M Kumai et al. 319
- Patterns of visiting nurse services for older adults in Japanese residential facilities: A latent class analysis
Y Mashida et al. 326
- Lower cognitive function as a risk factor for anemia among older Japanese women from the longitudinal observation in the SONIC study
T Noma et al. 334
- Association between glucose tolerance and mortality among Japanese community-dwelling older adults aged over 75 years: 12-year observation of the Tosa Longitudinal Aging Study
M Tatsumo et al. 341
- Participation in health and frailty check-ups predicted functional outcomes and mortality in older adults in Japan
M Ogita et al. 348
- Prognosis of home-cared or hospital-treated acute fever in older adults: A prospective multicenter case-control study
Y Arai et al. 355
- Exploratory study on the factors related with the early detection of missing older persons with dementia living alone in Japan
K Kikuchi et al. 362
- Positive aspects of caregiving attenuate the relationship between behavioral bother and anxiety and depressive symptoms in dementia family caregivers
S-T Cheng 366

- Leg skeletal muscle mass asymmetry is independently associated with gait speed in older adults requiring long-term care
R Sato et al. 371

- Validation of the applicability of the mealtime observation checklist in predicting the risk of aspiration pneumonia in older adults receiving oral intake support: A retrospective cohort study of four long-term care facilities
E Nishioka et al. 376

METHODOLOGICAL ARTICLE

- Toward developing care outcome quality indicators for home care for older people: A prospective cohort study in Japan
S Eltaybani et al. 383

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR RESEARCH STUDIES

- The number of centenarians continues to increase during the COVID-19 pandemic in Japan
Y Aoki 395
- National trends in the prescribing of Ninjin'yoeito, a Kampo medicine, for older adults from 2015 to 2020 in Japan
Y Sasaki et al. 396
- Effects of a group-based Otago exercise program on physical functional performance and fear of falling in older adult Korean women: A quasi-experimental study
Y Jin et al. 398